The war department was the chief center of activity, and while no authoritative statement was made beyond Secretary Garrison's formal reply that "no orders for additional troop movements have been sent,") it became known that the sending of additional troops to Vera Cruz was under consideration and probably would be carried out. This step would be intended, not as an aggressive measure, but as a reasonable precaution to support the force already there in case of any untoward event.

of equally serious portent was the report late in the day that two German merchant ships were about to arrive at Puerto Mexico with large supplies of arms and ammunition for Huerta. It was realized that this, if true, would present an incident similar to the arrival of the Tpiranga at Vera Cruz with her cargo of munitions. Cruz with her cargo of munitions, which led immediately to the American ecupation of that port.

Muerta Claims Armistics is Violated. Huerta's protest to the mediators that the United States had broken the armistice by landing additional proma at Vera Crus was considered by the cabinet and later Secretary Bryan announced that the reply of this government stated that no aggregative stabs ment stated that no aggressive steps had been taken by the United States forces and that nothing had been done in violation of the suspension of hostilities. The American reply was delivered to the mediators late today. The mediators themselves also took the view that the question reised by Huerta over the observance of the armistice could be cleared away and that Huerta could be convinced that the United States had not violated, in spirit at least, the armistice which ha dbeen States had not violated, in spirit at least, the armistice which ha dbeen agreed upon.

The cabinet meeting brought out a general discussion of the Mexican situation. It was said after the meeting that the matter of troop movements had previously been left with the war department and there was little doubt as to the sending of additional forces, wholly for precautionary purposes.

Availability of National Guard.

It also became known in this con-mection that inquiries had been made of the governors of sattes to escertain the condition of national guards and how soon they could be prepared for active service if conditions required. This again is a precautionary meas-

The indications are that if national guards were called upon they would not be sent out of the country, but would be used on the Texas border, releving regulars there, who would thus be available for reinforcing the troops now in Vera Crus.

The discussion of reinforcing Gen-

The discussion of reinforcing General Punston at Vers Crus has developed a marked difference of opinion in the cabinet. Some of the members take the view that the mediation negutiations might be embartassed by such an act, while others believe it to be a necessary precaution against a sudden attack on the American forces stretched along the railroad to the waterworks.

Funston Wante More Mon. General Funsten is understood to have told the war department that with the 7,000 men he now has his lines are vulnerable at different points and that a sudden attack along the reflected would necessitate the withdrawal of forces from other points which would be left unprotected.

He has informed the war department that he will need at least 15,000 to 18,000 men in order to hold Vara Cruz as well as the outlying districts which he now has garrisoned.

Chartering Transports.

The decision as to the number of troops to be given General Function has been left, it is understood, to the guidement of the general staff. It became known authoritatively that contracts had been eleged for the chartering of several merchant steamers and that within a day or two formal orders for troop movements would be issued.

ders for troop movements would be insued.

It is understood that some of the transports which have been chartered are not available at once, but that within the next two weeks at least nine transports will have been obtained by the war department.

Secretary Garrison declined to discuss the chartering of the steamers. There is no contemplated aggressive movement at this time.

This is in line with the attitude of other high officials of the administration, who contend that the sending of randovements to General Function is not an aggressive act, but merely a protection for the forces sleedly at vers. Crus, and does not visite the entered into between the United States and the mediators.

The fact that the high officers of the army had recommended the sending of at least 10,000 to 16,000 men to vers Crus in preparation for all eventualities became known during the day recently in executive quarters.

A number of officials admitted that the administration was now confront the administration of deciding whether it would limit its military activities to protecting the forces already.

Hartford, Conn., May 8.—Orders were received today from Washington for the reorganization of the infantry of the Connecticut National guard. Each regiment is to be reorganized on a war feeting comparing with the regular army. The present war footing is about 1,800 men, and this is to be received to 1,848, each company to be 150 men strong.

Cress in preparation for all eventices became known during the day ing here today from Mexico City say that General Victoriano Huerta shows no indication of having any intention it definities and the problem of deciding the problem of deciding the forces already are credited with having made the statement to protecting the forces already as to protecting the forces already as the capital in ashes before he left it.

It is expected that a detailed state-ment, dealing with Kuhn, Loeb and Company's examination of Missouri Pacific by their expects and probably allowed to delay their general preparations for the peace plan. Reports that the Mexican delegates would come by way of Salina Cruz and Vancouver by way of Salina Cruz and Vancouver and thence across Canada to Niagara Falls gave some concern as likely to cause delay. The Huerta delegates planned to avoid passing through the United States, but telegraphic inquiries are under way by which these plans may be modified so as to bring the delegates by the Atlantic route to New York or Boston and thence to Niagara Falls. This would permit the conference to proceed on May 13 with the Maxican delegates present. The general faciling among those close to the mediators was that there were no influences in the way of the steady process of the mediation negotiations. The names of American delegates to the conference are to be announced ahortly and it is known that Justice Lamar of the Umited States supreme court and Mayor Newlow D. Don't Neglect Your Advertising

The tillers of the soil have found out that there are certain seasons of the year when there is an advantage to be gained by planting certain seeds to obtain desired results and they get them if the seed is well selected, the soil good and the sowing properly done. They plan to have something in the ground all the time, and don't neglect it.

These same general facts are also recognized by the successful business man in regard to his advertising. It needs to receive the proper attention as to character, it must be placed where it will accomplish the most good, and it should receive thorough circulation to accomplish the best results. While there are seasons when the returns therefrom may be larger than others it is something which should be at work all the time, and not be neglected.

To insure your trade offerings getting to the locality and to the people who are going to help somebody's business and receiving the circulation which is so much desired there is no medium to be had which will equal the advantages offered by The Bulletin. Over 40,000 people get your message every day if it is in The Bulletin. It is omething you cannot afford to to be without.
